This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Research paper from the year 2012 in the subject Medicine - Medical Frontiers and Special Areas, grade: 4 on 4 scale (A), , language: English, abstract: Multiple regression, which is a data analytic technique used to predict a continuous criterion variable based on several predictor variables, is widely used in educational research and acknowledged as a reliable statistical method that provides estimates of the magnitude and statistical significance of the relationships between variables with acceptable levels of accuracy. This paper is aimed to identify predictors of reading comprehension among children. The database used provides the results of a survey of 332 children on their reading and visual perceptions. It contains several independent variables, such as phoneme awareness, visual perception, morpheme awareness, gender and learning style (visual, auditory, or kinesthetic). In Chapter I, descriptive statistics are reported, and the multiple correlation coefficients and their p-values are computed to investigate the relationships between key variables. Chapter II presents the results of three multivariate analyses, namely forced entry, stepwise, and hierarchical multiple regression methods, used to identify whether there is...
