The nitroso-bacteria oxidize ammonia to nitrous acid, while the nitro-bacteria lack the faculty of attacking ammonia, but perform the important task of converting nitrous acid into nitric acid. We are indebted to E. Marchel for proving that the faculty of eliminating ammonia from albuminoids is common to many fungi. The potency of the different species was found by him to vary, the largest quantity being produced by Bacillus mycoides. The first researches along the line of denitrification were undertaken by Jules Reiset in 1854 and 1855. He asserted that free nitrogen was always evolved during the decomposition of manure. Denitrification in arable soil was first noticed by Gappelsroder in 1862, and was long regarded as a purely chemical process. The first reference to the agency of bacteria in this decomposition was made by E. Mensel in 1875, and the earliest pure cultures of such organisms were obtained by U. Gayon and G. Dupetit in 1882. In succeeding years a large number of species, all capable of reducing nitrates, was made known. In 1888, P. Frankland was able to associate with the group in question 17 out of 32 species, and R. Warington 16 out of 25 species examined. A. Maassen, in 1902, found that out of 109 species, 85 were able to...
